to show his hand and explain the meaning of his remarks.

Mr. Richardson Silent. Mr. Richardson Silent.

During the recess for supper, a reporter for The Times-Dispatch attempted to interciew Mr. Richardson, but he refused emphatically to say one word concerning the matter. He regarded it as an official affair, and not one for the newspapers at present. The attorney would not so much as indicate the nature of the combine or the materials in which it deals or whether it has recently had any dealing with the city.

whether it mis recently with the city.

It is not improbable that the Aldermanic "Committee of Five" will take up the hint let drop by Mr. Richardson, and it may be that another combine will be "Committee of Five" will take up the hint let drop by Mr. Richardson, and it may be that another combine will be unearthed.

Barring the one unexpected and sensational remark of Mr. Richardson, the trial was devoid of feature. It was, however, remarkable for the speed with which it was handled, evidence, argument, instructions and verdet being reached within a fraction of twelve hours, not over eight of which were devoted to the trial itself.

The one really interesting revelation of the morning session was the slight and enly momentarily discrepancy in the testimony of the defendant King and his star witness and staunch friend, D. O'Sullivan. The latter had sworn positively that on June 10th, the date upon which King made a deposit in the American National Bank, he had loaned the defendant $500. On the following Monday King called at his place and gave him a note for the full amount.

King, on the stand a few minutes later, raid he borrowed the $500 on the 10th of June, and on the following Monday called on O'Sullivan, paying him $100 in cash and giving a note for the balance, $40. Messrs. Carter and Meredith were evidently alarmed by this statement, sot contradictory to the testimony of O'Sullivan, They engaged in an earnest convergation. King later corrected this statement.

The Jury Completed.

The Jury Completed.

After a trial of two days, the jury was completed at 10 o'clock, when J. B. Lambert and L. B. Robinson qualified from the last venies summoned. The jury was then constituted as follows: Robert Jones, John E. Hutcheson, Phil Hellstern, John F. Wren. Charles Newell, Charles Poindexter, W. T. Fitzgerald, Earnest-Young James A. Moore, John C. Freeman, J. B. Lambert and L. B. Robinson.

These were sworn in and the case was on in earnest. Commonwealth's Attorney Richardson outlined what the State expected to establish, while Mr. Carter Stated what the defense would prove.

Contractor Gude was the first witness called. He swips substantially what he has heretofore frepeated a number of times on the witness stand, saying he had given John M. King the sum of $450 for his influence and vote in the Street Committee. This transaction occurred on or bear June 10th.

Gasser and Weinbrunn followed, reiterating what they have before stated in connection with the celebrated affair, Messrs, Meredith and Carter never missed an opportunity to attempt to disprove certain statements and tangle the witnesses. The veracity of a number of the witnesses was questioned by the attorneys.

Mr. D. O'Sullivan opened the testimony witnesses.

witnesses was questioned by the attorneys.

Mr. D. O'Sullivan opened the testimony for the defense, and the most interesting part of his say has before been recorded. He was followed by King himself. Mr. Richardson attempted to confuse Mr. C'Sullivan about a $250 note given by him to King, but he denied all knowledge of such a paper, saying positively he had had no dealing with the defendant prior to a year before June 10th.

Later Mr. Richardson proved by Mr. Hill, cashier of the American Bank, that King had discounted a note for $350 shortly before June 10th, and the note was given by no one other than O'Sullivan.

At 2:30 P. M. court took a recess for dinner, not reconvening until 4:15 o'clock.

COLONEL CUTSHAW TESTIFIES.

COLONEL CUTSHAW TESTIFIES.

COLONEL CUTSHAW TESTIFIES.

When court was called to order at 4:15 o'clock in the afternoon Colonel Cutshaw, City Engineer, was put on the stand by Mr. Carter. Not over twenty people, including officials, were in the room. Colonel Cutshaw testified that he was present when bids for granite spall pavement were rejected. The motion was made by Mr. King, who regarded the proposals as rather high.

Mr. Carter questioned the witness regarding the first charges he heard of corruption. In reply he said that Gaster high many the contractor was emphatic that Gaser said "King and others." The Colonel was emphatic that Gaser said "King and others," The contractor said he owed King money for a recent contract. Later, at an investigation of the charge by the Street Committee, Gasser refused to reiterate his original statement, while Gude and Weinbrum denied that there had been any bribery. Mr. Richardson brought out that at a subsequent meeting of the committee gentracts for granite spall pavement, were left at a price a triffe higher than the figure originally objected to by King.

Using a record of the minutes of the have confused this talk with the one he held with Gasser.

"Welnbrunn," said the witness, "called at the office the day after a meeting of the Street Committee, to learn about the letting of certain contracts. When he learned they had all been rejected, Weinbrunn said: "That man king and other councilmen want more money."

Cashier Hill, of the American Bank, was called. He said on May 14th, the bank had put to King's credit $350 for a note signed by D. O'Sullivan and endorsed by King. It was a sixty-day note. This evidence was new and seemed to impress the jury as one of the members asked a question about it.

CASE CLOSED.

Mr. Hill was excused, Mr. Richardson

CASE CLOSED.

Mr. Hill was excused, Mr. Richardson announced the case closed, and the attorney retired with Judge Ingram, the instructions being argued and prepared, While this was soing on there was a recess of fifteen minutes. Slowly and carefully Judge Ingram read the instructions to the jury and argument was about to be undertaken, when Mr. Hill called Mr. Richardson out for a minute.

As a result, Mr. Hill was again put on the stand. He had been to the bank during the brief recess and satisfied himself as to the $350 note, of which he had testified. Mr. Hill swore positively that the note was signed by D. O'Sullivan and that King was the only endorser.

note was signed by D. O'Sullivan and that King was the only endorser.

Mr. Hill was excused and Mr. Richardson opened for the Commonwealth. With only a few preliminary remarks the atterney proceeded to argue the instructions. He laid particular stress upon that clause of the instructions, saying that the jury should find the accused guilty, if they were satisfied that King accepted a promise from oither of the three contractors, even though he did not get a cent of money, and despite that in accepting the promise he was acting for the best interest of the city.

Mr. Richardson said that he was frank to admit that he believed King had accomplices in the Council, "and," he added, "King could tell who they were, if he dared."

He said it came with bad grace to plead for King's acquittal because there were others who had escaped detection.

STARTLING STATEMENT.

were others who had escaped detection.

STARTLING STATEMENT.

The Commonwealth's Attorney continued by condemning the "paving pool or combine," saying that he now KNOWS of a SIMILAR COMBINE, IN WHICH ARE INTERESTED a former member of the Street Committee and a present COUNCILMAN.

Mr. Richardson then took the testimony of each witness, plees by plee, reviewing and arguing each point with much force and ability.

Judge Richardson spoke for an hour, closing at 6:50 o'clock. His argument was closely followed by all of the jurors, holding their attention all of the time.

Mr. Meredith opened for the defense. He sopke for one hour and ten minutes. During his speech, which was brilliant and cloquent, Mr. Meredith paid particular attention to the testimony of Gude, Gasser and Weinbrunn, whom he characterized as false swearers and self-convicted perjurers. He argued their evidence too unworthy on which to convict a yellow dog.

The member showed, from his standa tellow dog.

The speaker showed, from his standpoint how plaasible and natural it was for the three contractors to accuse King that at subsequent meeting of the committee, gentracts for grantle spall pavement, were left at a price a trife higher than the figure originally objected to by King.

Using a record of the minutes of the committee meeting, when the charge of corruption was first made public, as a reminder, the Commonwealth's Attorney attempted to upset the first statement of the City Engineer in regard to Gasser saying "King and others." The minutes in question do not show Colonel Cutshaw to have reported to the Street Committee that Gasser said "King and others."

Colonel Cutshaw was excused and Mr. Barney E. Myers, the merchant tallor, talled. He testified that on June 19th King saye him a check for 175 for a suit of tolers and a pair of gants, the former emounting to 500 and the latter being worth H5. June 19th is the date upon which King is alleged to have landed E50, a part of which was, it is alleged, received from a corrupt source. Mr. Second from a corrupt source. Mr. The whole course of business of clock haing delivered an argum it about the same master and may have confused this talk with the one held with Gasser.

The witness was positive that Gasser spoke of "they" saying that Richmond was guite as corrupt as other cities.

Mr. Richardson showed that the witness had had a conversation with Weinbrun about the same matter and may have confused this talk with the one held with Gasser.

"Weinbrunn," said the witness, "colled at the orfice the day after a meeting of the Street Committee, to learn about the letting of certain contracts. When he learned they had all been rejected, Weinbrunn, said: "That man King and other councilism with the one held with Gasser."

Cashier Hill, of the American Bank, was called. He said on May Hith, the bank had put to King's credit 1356 for a note signed by D. O'Sulliyan and endowed the contracts of the first power of the first power of the first power of the first power of the first pow the other side.

The speaker then turned attention to the lack of motive of Gude. Gasser and Weinbrun for testifying falsely, as introduced by the defense.

At 1130 ochock Mr. Richardsen concluded, and the case was submitted to the Jury. The twelve men retired to the room, escorted by Deputy City Sergents Mike Macon and Pat Bowis. The verdet came a little later.

WANTED TO SWAP MULE FOR A HORSE

Mr. Sheppard, the Artist, was Accidentally Passing and Put Characters on Canvas

Among the many meritorious pictures on exhibition by the Richmond Art Club are three by the talented artist, Mr. W. L. Bheppard, of this city.

Mr. Sheppard's portrait of Hon. John Goode, president of the Constitutional Convention, has been frequently mentioned and warmly praised by ait.

Two other pictures by Mr. Sheppard are equally meritorious. One is a land-scape in which the artist has portrayed a hillside. The other is exceedingly realistic, and has the added charm of being a reproduction of a Richmond. occurrence. Mr. Sheppard's residence is at No. 13 West Grace Street. Not far away, across Broad Street and up Brook Avenue a few steps, is a stable where countrymen leave their horses for the night. On one occasion Mr. Sheppard was passing the stable yard and saw a man trying to trade a mule for a horse, and the scene struck him so forcibly that he has preserved it on an excellent piece of canvas. This, as well as the other pictures, is for sale.
